MONEY NO DEJECT.

When It Allewed Telling Henry Clay the nort of Partner He Was.

"One of my boyhood recollections," said General Wade-Hampton, "refers to Henry Clay. He was a frequent visitor at my father's house in South Carolina. Both Clay and my father were ardent whist players, and nothing was more to their minds than the collection of a brace of gentlemen equally addicted to whist, and then the quartet would play for bours. While the name of whist might surve to imply a game where allenco reigned, my father and Clay didn't pluy what that way. They exulted anathly over a success, and did not hesizate when they were playing as partners to violently point out mistakes | amoker. the other had made and attributed defeat to the other's ignorance and utter lack of natural intelligence. Indeed, on occasions particularly trying, they were even known to apply hard names to one another. This they did in no slanderous spirit, but to brighten up and al orpon the wits of the other to the improvements of his play. As they were sitting down to a game as partners one evening Clay remurked;

"'It's a great outrage the way we talk to each other, and my idea now, at the outset, is for each of us to put up $20, to belong to the one who is first called hard names by the other. If you assail me, the money is mine; if I forgot myself, you take it.'

"My father readily agreed. He felt in a mild, agreeable mood. He was confident he would never again be a prey to the alightest impulse to speak harshly to his dear friend Clay. And, besides, it was his recollection that Clay was the man who raged and did the loud talkwould be a good lesson to the blue grass | ald, erator to less it. As they proceeded with the game Clay made some excess ively thick headed and ill advised plays. He led the wrong cards; he trumped the wrong tricks; he did everything idiotic in whist that he well could. My father's blood began to boil. As he and Clay lost game after game his wrath ran higher and higher. Still he bit his lip and suffered in effence. It went on for hours, until Clay made some play of growning imbecility which lost him and my father the eleventh game. Flesh and blood could stand no more. My father sternly pushed the $40 over to Clay.

"Why," said Clay, opening his gray eyes with a look of innocence and amazoment, 'why do you do that? You haven't said a word, "'No," retorted my father, 'but I'm going to tell you, sir, that you are the most abject idiot, the most boundless imbecile that ever dealt a hand at whist. Yes, sir; I repeat it, you are the —fool I ever met in my life. "—Chicago Times-Herald.

Women Who Imagine They See Objects That No One Else Sees.

Says a writer in The Popular Science Monthly: "Among the cariosities of thought which the physician meets with, unexpected perceptions suddenly appearing before the mind with the same vividness as ordinary perceptions, but without any accompanying external excitant, are not uncommon. A person may look at an empty chair and yet see a familiar form seated in that chair, and may even hear remarks made by this imaginary figure, and not doubt for a moment that the figure is an actual entity. I have seen persons talking with such imaginary individuals, and have had them assure me that they were as sure of their presence and of their voices as they were of my own. I have seen persons manifest the greatest plarm at the presence of animals about them, and refuse to believe from assurance that those animals were not there.

"A young woman having once been frightened by the sudden presentation to her of a white mouse has been tronbled for years by seeing this monso running about her, upon her clothing, upon anything she is handling, and even upon her food; and, as a result, she is in a state of constant agitation and perplexity, though at times convinced that this is the product of her mind. She washes her hands and her clothing frequently because she is convinced that this anirual has made them dirty; and she cannot divest herself of the belief that it is real. I have been sometimes able to convince persons that such functed figures were not real by asking them to push this rate but a short while before the one eyeball up a little with the finger. forest giant is compelled to succumb to This makes all objects about them seem double, as any one can prove to himself, but it does not double the false imagethe product of the mind. ASKING THE CAPTAIN.

Just What Happened When Information Was Sought From the Commander.

"Once on an ocean steamer," said a traveler, "we had a heated shaft bearing, or something of that sort, so that the engines stopped for five or six hours. I had often read and heard about how the captain was the great mogul aboard ship, how about all things pertaining to the affairs of the ship he held aloof and must not be approached by the passengers, and that it was a sort of violation of the unwritten rules of the sea for a passenger to ask the captain any thing. And there may be some reason in all this; if one passenger might ask him, 40 might, and surely the commander of the ship ought not to be unneces-sarily disturbed by useless questions. We had been lying there three or four hours waiting. There was no danger whatever, but it was a delay and an incident of interest, and of course all the passengers talked about nothing else the common information was that the delay was due to a heated bearing.

"I was standing on the opper deck by the door to the main companionway leading to the deck below. The captain came along the upper deck from the after part of the ship and went below by that companionway. He must pass within a foot of me, and under the circumstances it did not seem like a violently unreasonable breach of salt water etiquette to ask him what was the matter, which I did. A passenger who stood traveler. The captain said nothing. He simply passed on, to all ontward appearances quite unconscious of my ques tion or even my presence,"-New York

The Tree Hiller.

One of the curious forest growths of the isthmus of Panama and lower Central America in general is the vine which the Spaniards call matapalo, or "tree killer." This vine first starts in life as a climber upon the tranks of the large trees, and, owing to its marvelonaly rapid growth, soon reaches the lower branches. At this point it first begins to put out its "feelers"-tender, harmless looking root shoots, which soon reach the ground and become as firmly fixed as the parent stem. These hundreds of additional sap tubes give the whole vine a renewed lease of life, and it begins to send out its aerial tendrils in all directions. These intwine themselves tightly around every limb of the tree, even ereeping to the very farthermost tips and squeezing the life out of both bark and leaf. Things go on at forest giant is compelled to succumb to the gigantic parasite which is sapping its life's blood. Within a very few years the tree rots and falls away, leaving the matapale standing erect and bollow, like a monster vegetable devilfish lying upon its back with its horrid tentacles clasped together high in the air. Morgan, "Central America Afoot," says, "Corelike arbors of matapalo are to be reen in all directions, each testifying to he lingering death of some sylvan giant that formerly supported it."-St. Louis Republic.

THREE NEW YORK LANDMARKS.

Crinity, St. Tunt's and Grace Church Daily confounds every exhabition of real estate speculators. They are the only three churches on Breadway below Forty-second street, and each has come to be park of the popular distinction of that ther-to architectural eminence, and all three are of one denomination—the Protestant Episcops L The site of Trinity church, on Broadway at the head of Wall street, is appraised officially at $4,000,000; that of St. Panl's church, at Broadway and Fulton street, at $1,750,000, and that of Grace church, Broadway opposite Eleventh street, at $350,000. The frontage of Trinity church, including the churchyard, is 400 feet, of St. Paul's church 167 feet and of Grace church 150 feet. The gress valuation of these three churches is $8,100,000, and as the usual rate of assessment on real estate is about 60 per cent the actual market value of these three Broadway plots is in excess of $10,000,000. In European cities it is no strange thing for public thoroughfares to be dotted with venerable edifices exected for ecclesiastical, military or governmental purposes, but in New York, where there is no material partnership between church and state, and where, perhaps, more utilitarian views prevail than abroad, the steady enhancement of real estate values has been such that few religious corporations have been strong enough or felt themselves strong mough to withstand the temptation to sell. On the present site of Tiffany's, for instance, Broadway and Fiftceuth street, formerly a church stood. There was a chapel opposite the site of the old New York hotel. But with the advance of business interests the congregations reluctantly moved away. These three landmarks named have stood their ground, and it seems probable that they will continue to do St. Paul's church is the oldest religions edifice in this city. It was built in 1764, and it was the church which attended immediately following the inauguration ceremonies in 1789. Trinity church is the third of that name on the present site, and was erected in 1846. Grace church was erected in 1845, one year before Trinity, and the site, at the head of Broadway where it turns en angle at Teath street, was carefully chosen. All three buildings enjoy the advantage of being kept in excellent repair, and are improved from time to time by the liberal contributions of benefactors. This is especially true of Trinity and Grace church, which may almost be said to improve year by year. It is a peculiarity of these three landmarks of New York that those who attend them come, in nearly every case, from sections of the city far up town, so that they are, if such an expression may be used, the three churches to be reached by carriage. Very few persons who attend either Trinity or St. Paul's reside in their vicinity, and the number of such parishioners decreases each year. Grace church rotains its high rank architecturally, notwithstanding the number of new church buildings in New York, and it has the additional distinction of being popular for fashiouable weddings. - New York Sun.

A Woman Sexton. Many women in New York have mastered the art of embalming and are employed as undertakers' assistants in much the same way as a doctor calls on the services of a mirse. There are several women-undertakers who sell coffins provide shrouds and attend to other de tails of their gloomy calling. These last are not necessarily embaliness and are in most instances the widows of undertakers, carrying on the business which their husbands established. They assume charge of a dead body and prepare it for burial, but invariably call on some friendly man undertaker to conduct the funeral and ostensibly appear in charge. Brooklyn boasts a woman who is not only an undertaker, but the sexten of a church as well, successfully discharging all the duties that pertain to both call ings, except the personal conduct of public funeral.—New York Tribune.

Woman's Influence.

Men are not apt to indulge in rowdyism in the presence of women whom they respect, and there was some force in the argument for woman suffrage made by / member of one of the Cana-George Washington and his associates dian legislatures a few years ago. An opponent suggested the horrible possibility that if women had the parliamentary vote some women might be elected to the provincial legislature. Another member retorted that this might prove an advantage, since if there were ladies present the honorable gentlemen would probably cease to mause themselves by throwing rubber overshoes at one another's heads.

The recent pulling of beards in the Nebraska senate is another illustration in point. No doubt there is plenty of buman nature in women, but it looks as if there were a good deal in men too .-Woman's Journal.

If subjected to a heat of between 700 and 800 degrees it resolves into three distinct productscharcoal, pyroligueous acid and gases. In order to properly bring this change about it is necessary to place the wood in a kiln and apply the heat gradually for four or five days. At the end of that time the residue will be 1,000 pounds of charcoal, 2,000 pounds of pyroligneous acid and 1,000 pounds of uncondense gases The aggregate weight of the products is exactly equal to the original weight of the wood -St. Louis Repub ings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with coplous expectoration (including tablercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Gelden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Gelden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to comess that it surpasses, in curative power over this but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Masty codiver oil and its fifthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either atterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time.
